

AAC Publications

---

Adirondacks and Catskills Summary

New York

There were four technical climbing rescues in the mountains of upstate New York in 2017. In addition to the ice climbing accident described here, a 58-year-old man fell on an ice climb in Platte Clove in the Catskills and was injured but able to walk out with assistance; two climbers were stranded on Wallface, a remote cliff in the High Peaks, after dropping their rope; and a soloist was stranded about 70 feet up Shipton's Arête (5.4) at Chapel Pond.

Images

Article Details

Author
Publication	ANAM
Volume	11
Issue	71
Page	76
Copyright Date	2018
Article Type	Accident reports